Onwards and Upwards

The year 2024-25 has been one of great significance for us. We inaugurated the new Annexe to our hospital- the Peppy & Ginger Wing, named in memory of the beloved pets of our donor friends, Priya and Vijay Agarwal. Built on the pillars of progress, compassion, scientific care, and unwavering service, this facility is equipped with modern infrastructure, advanced diagnostics, and a dedicated team of veterinary professionals and caregivers. It now enables us to deliver lifesaving treatment and rehabilitative care to domestic and wild animals across the Thane district.

Reflecting on our journey from a single treatment room to a full-fledged hospital, we have often faced questions about expenditures: Why build staff rooms? Why create green spaces? Why not simply add more enclosures to increase capacity? I would like to use this platform to share the Managing Committee's perspective behind these decisions.

Street animals are among the most vulnerable in our community. They endure harsh weather, accidents, malnutrition, and neglect daily, yet are often offered only the bare minimum – if anything at all. To us, this was deeply unjust. Animals are our counterparts and deserve the same level of care, dignity, and comfort that we expect for ourselves. With this belief, we envisioned a space that went far beyond basic walls and floors - a facility that offered modern diagnostics, accessible care, comfort, and state-of-the-art medical support.

We designed the Annexe as a long-term solution - a dedicated space for primary care, detailed diagnosis, and ongoing treatment for both street and owned animals. The goal: efficient medical care without logistical barriers. Quality infrastructure means better outcomes - comfortable kennels, recovery wards, and modern equipment enable faster, low-stress recovery, while clean, spacious facilities improve welfare and disease control.

Often, people assume animal welfare only means facilities for the animals, but this is why good infrastructure for staff is equally crucial as it -

Fosters staff efficiency & ensures their safety: Proper workspaces help veterinarians perform effectively and reduce stress, errors, and burnout. Good infrastructure allows them to focus on their primary goal - providing quality care.

Promotes hygiene & disease control: Good sanitation, drainage, and segregation prevent infections. Segregated areas for treatment, quarantine, and recovery prevent cross-contamination.

Increases the project's long-term sustainability: Strong infrastructure withstands emergencies and seasonal surges while minimising maintenance costs.

Boosts staff morale and retention: Safe, well-equipped spaces uplift teams and lead to better animal care. A safe, clean, and supportive infrastructure (rest areas, proper equipment, ventilation) acts as a morale booster, which in turn facilitates better veterinary care.

Builds community trust & support: A professional, transparent facility reassures caregivers and strengthens public confidence and support.

We see this not as an expense, but as an investment - in compassion, community welfare, and long-term sustainability. Every rupee spent will benefit hundreds and thousands of animals for years to come. Unlike temporary fixes, this Annexe is built to last, ensuring enduring impact and cost savings. How a society treats its most vulnerable people or animals reflects its true values. This project embodies empathy, dignity, and care for those who cannot speak for themselves, setting a new standard for community animal care in the district. Healthy animals and happy staff thrive only with good infrastructure. We invite everyone to visit the Annexe, witness the work firsthand, and share ideas to make it even more impactful. Together, we affirm that compassion is not a luxury- it's a responsibility.

The Peppy and Ginger Wing now stands as a purpose-built haven where animal care comes first. With your support, we've turned a dream into a space of hope, love, and second chances - and we'll keep building on that promise. Onwards and upwards.

Finally, my heartfelt thanks to everyone who gives our work shape each day. To our dedicated staff for their resilience, to the Board and Executive Committee for their leadership, to my friends for their support, and to my advisers for their wisdom - thank you all for standing by this mission.

Echoes of Dora

Dora was referred to us because she had a serious skin infection. She was given every medication for the skin problems along with various shampoos, supplements, antifungals, and antibiotics. However, there was still no improvement. Our doctors diagnosed the condition as Pemphigus foliaceus, an autoimmune vesicobullous pustular skin disease in dogs characterised by the production of autoantibodies against the intercellular connections of keratinocytes.

We saw positive results within a week of starting the targeted treatment. It took Dora three months to fully recover and live a medicine-free life!

Echoes of Bantam Goat

A Bantam goat was brought to the Thane CPCA Animal Hospital early one morning after delivering a kid the previous night. Continuous contractions had caused a uterine prolapse, with the placenta still attached.

The uterus was gently cleaned, the placenta was removed to control bleeding, and topically lignocaine gel with caudal epidural anaesthesia was administered to ease repositioning. Sutures were placed to prevent recurrence. She has recuperated and is happily reunited with her owners.

yet another success story!

Transmissible Venereal Tumor (TVT) Case

A 5-year-old Indian pariah male dog was presented to Dr. Shardul Salvi with multiple nodular lesions disseminated over the cervical, back, limbs, and abdominal regions. Even the third eyelids were ulcerated and bleeding. The lesions were ulcerated and cauliflower-like, or nodular and subcutaneous, measuring up to 10 cm in diameter.

Cytologic preparations of one of the lesions revealed a uniform population of round to oval cells, with lightly basophilic cytoplasm that contained multiple distinct vacuoles. Also, frequent mitotic figures and occasional lymphocytes were observed. The cytologic diagnosis was cutaneous transmissible venereal tumor (TVT) in a progressing growth phase. This was confirmed by histologic findings.

TVT is a contagious neoplasm of sexually mature dogs that is usually transmitted by coitus and affects the genital mucosa. It is unique in its exclusively cutaneous (no mucosal) involvement. We speculate that transmission of neoplastic cells occurred during cohabitation. Despite the atypical clinical presentation, response to chemotherapy with vincristine was excellent, leading to complete regression of the neoplasm.

The dog has been discharged after a very long in-house stay and is back with his caretakers now.

Domestic Shorthair (DSH) Cat Case

A 1-year-old female Domestic Shorthair (DSH) cat was presented to Thane CPCA Animal Hospital on a busy OPD morning.

The rescued cat had a history of a non-healing wound at the base of the tail and exhibited vocalisation due to pain while defecating.

An X-ray examination revealed two pellets near the vertebral column; one pellet was located at the right dorso-lateral aspect of L6, and the other over the sacral vertebrae. Due to the proximity of the pellets to the vertebrae, the surgery was considered risky.

Nevertheless, at the request of the rescuing NGO Mumbai Animal Association, the emergency surgery was performed successfully by our Surgeon, Dr. Shardul Salvi, and both pellets were removed without complications. The cat recovered fully and was released successfully.

These moments of healing remind us why we began this journey to create a kinder, more compassionate world for animals and people alike.

Dystocia Case

At least 5-6 cases of dystocia a month are presented to us at our hospital. Considering the density of this number, we shudder to think how many, many more are dying in the corners of the district, unattended, unloved.

Animal Birth Control is the only way to cut down on these deaths, and it is a shame that only individual animal lovers and NGOs are fighting this lonely battle, which, vide Animal Birth Control Rules 2023, should be implemented by the district and local administration.

Kudos to all those doing this piecemeal work, out of their own hard-earned money and time, out of pure concern and love for their street animals.

With every life touched,
we move one step closer to that vision.

RootRevive:

Restoring Forests, Renewing Life

The Miyawaki Way

Beyond animal welfare, Thane CPCA extends its mission to the environment through an afforestation initiative designed to restore forests and renew life.

Using the Miyawaki method, we plant dense clusters of native trees, shrubs, and groundcover species to rapidly regenerate natural habitats and strengthen local biodiversity.

Our plantations, established on protected fallow land around Thane and Pune defence bases, transform unused spaces into thriving green zones for birds and small wildlife. Each site is enriched with organic soil matter and designed with multiple canopy layers to mirror natural forest ecosystems.

The result is a self-sustaining forest that grows up to ten times faster than conventional plantations, improves air quality, reduces urban heat, and serves as a vital carbon sink — creating pockets of nature that benefit animals, people, and the planet alike.

Championing Transparency, Year After Year

For the sixth consecutive year, we are proud to receive the Guidestar India Champion Level Platinum Certification, placing us among the country's most credible NGOs after a rigorous due diligence process.

This recognition reflects our unwavering commitment to accountability, transparency, and good governance. We make our tax returns, audited accounts, auditor's reports, donor information, and governance policies publicly available- reinforcing our belief that in the world of NPOs, it's not just projects and numbers that matter, but trust and integrity.

A special appreciation to Indraneel Roy for his meticulous efforts and countless hours spent compiling and processing data to achieve this milestone.

Facilities Offered

Located in the heart of the city of Thane, our organisation has struggled for over 24 years to deliver the promise it had made to distressed animals to be their haven. From one single room, one veterinarian and one ambulance in 2002, we have grown to be Thane's only full-fledged animal care facility offering all services under one roof. We are not a shelter rendering permanent homes for animals. Our focus is to provide ameliorative and preventive care to make sheltering as redundant as possible. Our motto is to Rescue animals, explore every avenue of Rehabilitation that can be offered to them and then Release them back - either to their original territory or to a new Forever Home.

Thane CPCA Animal Hospital has a single mandate - to provide hospital and associated services to owned as well as unowned animals & birds of our district, something that was unavailable to them till our inception.

Our five focal points of service goals that culminate in animal welfare are

Ameliorative

Preventive

Educative

Supportive

Legislative

Our hospital facilities include:

- In-Patients Department
- Out-Patients Department
- Mobile Clinic (7 Days A Week, Pick Up & Drop)
- Digital Radiology
- Intensive Care Unit
- Fully equipped Operation Theatre
- Laser treatment for chronic diseases
- Ophthalmology Unit

All these services are either subsidised or free of cost. All patients who recuperate are released to their original territories or to their caretakers as per law.

In alignment with our objective of supporting fellow organisations and individual animal crusaders, this financial year, we chose to partner with PAWDOPT.

Inundated by the surge in the number of abandoned pet animals and the pressure of daily work on the hospital staff over the last few years, our Adoption Co-ordinator, Nandita Saigal, realised that this work should be handled by a team focused solely on this programme.

Thus, an amazing group of youngsters - Rhea Chhabria, Nikunj Sule, and Yogesh Mulki - came into being, and under the guidance of Nandita, PAWDOPT was born - an ancillary of Thane CPCA's rescue and rehabilitation wing.

Their services are not just an ancillary programme; it is a very essential part of our Motto “Release”. Without their efforts, our facility would either be full of abandoned animals for their lifetime or would not have been rescued, defeating the purpose of our mandate.

Together we will rescue, rehabilitate and rehome abandoned pet animals who have faced neglect and hardship. We are excited about the journey ahead and can't wait to continue the incredible work we accomplish together.

Sensitising is a crucial part of our objective. Our focus is no longer just on safeguarding animals under the PCA Act 1960; it is also to prevent animal abuse before it happens. To achieve this, we actively engage with students from pre-primary through college, corporate employees, and the local community to address animal welfare issues.

We educate and engage with our communities, advocating for better outcomes at a Government level to change laws, and desexing hundreds of animals to break the cycles of unwanted litters.

While sensitisation changes the mindset of individuals towards the development sector causes, they must be offered an opportunity to implement these changes in the actual field of work. Volunteering offers benefits like personal development through skill-building, increased empathy & perspective, a stronger sense of purpose, and opportunities for networking and career advancement. It also provides the satisfaction of making a direct, positive impact on society.

Our organisation offers In-person volunteering involving field work or office-based tasks. Virtual volunteering by engaging in tasks such as digital marketing, content creation, or social media promotion from a volunteer's own device, as well as skill-based volunteering by applying their professional skills in areas like business development, tech, finance, or graphic design to support our operations.

Preventive care in animal welfare goes beyond vaccinations and parasite control - it includes reporting and intervening in cases of cruelty or neglect. Mass vaccination is especially vital in areas where Animal Birth Control and Anti-Rabies programs are lacking.

Working with street animals- treating, feeding, or vaccinating is never easy; it takes teamwork. From coordinators and ambulance staff to volunteers and the public, every effort counts. Together with our partners at Mission Rabies, we've reached thousands of animals through our vaccination drives. At another level, as a coordinating body between animal lovers and authorities, we serve as the central point of contact in cases of cruelty, neglect, or harassment - whether it involves community animals, their caretakers, or pet owners.

Looking Forward

As the Administrative Manager of the Thane Community for the Protection and Care of Animals, my life's work is deeply rooted in a profound love for animals, a passion instilled in me by my mother, an unwavering animal advocate whose compassion shaped my purpose.

Growing up, I watched her rescue strays, nurse injured creatures, and fight tirelessly for their well-being, teaching me that animals deserve unconditional care and respect. Her influence drives my career, and for me, nothing matters more than this love for animals, paired with an unwavering loyalty to our mission and a fascination with innovative technology.

At CPCA, my vision is to transform our animal hospital into a beacon of hope - a cutting-edge sanctuary where sick and injured animals are healed with both advanced medical care and heartfelt compassion, without the burden of financial priorities overshadowing our purpose.

My mother's legacy taught me that every animal, from the smallest sparrow to an abandoned street dog, deserves a chance at a healthy, happy life. This belief fuels my commitment to making CPCA a place where love is the cornerstone of every action. As an administrative officer, I oversee operations with a focus on creating a nurturing environment where animals feel safe and cared for. But my vision extends beyond traditional care.

I'm passionate about integrating technology to revolutionize the way we treat animals. Imagine a hospital equipped with AI-driven diagnostics to detect ailments early, telemedicine for remote consultations with veterinary specialists, & automated systems that monitor recovery in real-time. These innovations aren't just "cool" gadgets; they're tools to save lives more efficiently & ensure no animal suffers due to outdated methods or resource constraints.

Building on the success of our Digital OPD and IPD systems, which have streamlined record-keeping and eliminated paperwork, my vision for 2025 is to enhance operational and HR efficiency through innovative digital solutions. We aim to introduce an internal hospital app to automate recurring tasks and strengthen interdepartmental communication, ensuring seamless coordination across teams.

A new digital HR system will allow staff to manage leave requests, track attendance, and conduct self-assessments – fostering accountability, collaboration, and continuous growth.

While funding sustains our operations, compassion drives our mission. At CPCA, quality care is never dictated by cost. Every animal – from an injured bird to a rescued stray – receives equal dedication. My goal is to make CPCA a model of love, loyalty, and innovation, where people and technology work together to give every animal the care it deserves.

Future Plan

I envision CPCA growing into a global model for animal welfare where technology and compassion work hand in hand to heal, rehabilitate, and rehome animals. My mother's belief that animals are family guides every step we take. At CPCA, we're building that future - one wagging tail, one healed wing, and one innovation at a time. As we look ahead, our focus remains on preventing harm and strengthening the bond between animals and our communities.

- INDRANEEL ROY
Administrative Manager, THANE CPCA

Gratitude To Our Golden Hearted Guardians

Every day, we are amazed by the unwavering and extraordinary support of our friends and donors. Most of what we do depends entirely upon their generosity. From stepping up to reintroduce an abandoned dog into a community that is taken care of by them, to taking part in our events, or procuring materials for us needed in life-saving situations, there are hundreds of ways people have helped our organization, and tens of thousands of animals who have benefited as a result. For that, we cannot thank our generous community enough.

As we worked our way onwards and upwards- from a small room to a full-fledged hospital- we were fortunate to meet remarkable individuals whose support has made it possible for us to provide essential, life-saving care to animals in need. Their compassion has not only brought relief to countless animals but has also helped build a more humane and sustainable community through meaningful, systemic change.

Some have funded urgent medical treatment and rehabilitation for injured or sick animals, while others have supported our rescue and rehoming programmes, covered foster care expenses, contributed to our spay and neuter initiatives, or helped sustain the core operational costs of our project. Together, their efforts continue to strengthen our mission and create lasting impact.

How Can You Choose To Support Thane CPCA?

When you choose to support Thane CPCA, you are supporting a worthy cause whose foundation is laid on honesty and integrity. You become a part of a compassionate community giving needy animals hope and a second chance.

If you want to make a difference to the lives of animals in some way or other, Thane CPCA is the right place for you to be. We invite you to visit our facility in Thane. We would love to introduce you to our adorable resident dogs and cats, along with the in-house patients, the community who selflessly bring their street animals to us for treatment, interact with our hardworking team of medical professionals and the support staff, and see first hand the love and care we provide.

Join us in our journey of compassion and help us give voice to the voiceless

Each actionable way that our benefactors provide support, from donating supplies to volunteering time, makes a significant difference in the lives of animals, as well as in the lives of those who work tirelessly in our organisation to serve them.

BY DIRECT SUPPORT

- 1 You can provide funds for essential needs like nutritious food, vital veterinary care, and a safe, secure shelter environment. You can make a significant impact from the comfort of your own home by helping us in an online fundraising campaign.
- 2 You can offer much-needed items such as antiseptic liquids, kennel wash, medical consumables, old towels, training pads, newspapers, grooming supplies, collars, leashes, crates, carriers, food and water bowls, flea and tick treatments, nursing bottles for young animals, and office products to support administrative tasks .
- 3 You can contribute to campaigns that support rescue efforts, provide immediate care for injured or abandoned animals, and cover rehabilitation costs.

BY TIME AND EFFORT

- 1 You can volunteer to make a difference. It is a fantastic way to make a difference by assisting with various tasks, including cleaning, feeding, and administrative tasks.
- 2 If you're able to provide a loving home, either temporarily or permanently, consider fostering or adopting an animal from us.
- 3 Both fostering and adopting are ways to support animal shelters and make a significant difference in the lives of these animals. By opening your home and heart to help them become more adoptable by living in a home setting, and exposing them to potential adopters. By choosing to adopt, you're also taking a stand against puppy mills and supporting efforts to tackle the root causes of pet homelessness.
- 4 Your initiative can inspire others to contribute, volunteer, or even adopt, creating a ripple effect of kindness and compassion.
- 5 Education and advocacy are crucial for improving animal welfare. By educating others, you can raise awareness about the importance of humane treatment for animals and encourage actions that support our efforts in animal welfare.

Forever in Our Hearts

Over the past two years, we have said goodbye to several of our long-time, beloved in-house friends. Our official mascot, Batlu, was the first to cross the Rainbow Bridge last year. Before we could come to terms with her loss, we had to bid farewell to two more dear companions – Pari and Mrs Parab.

Pari, abandoned eight years ago along with her two brothers, was rescued by compassionate hands. While her brothers found loving homes, Pari remained with us, her semi-furless body never deterring the affection she received from our staff. She became a cherished presence, adored by our OPD caretakers. Her passing, to us, felt like a seamless transition from warm daylight to eternal sunlight.

"Pari" the Fairy Girl

Mrs. Madhavi Parab, our devoted Hospital Supervisor since 2002, was the heart of every activity. Ever alert to the needs of every animal, she took only one long break – after undergoing brain aneurysm surgery. In later years, her heart began to fail, and she, too, crossed the Rainbow Bridge to rejoin the animals she had so lovingly cared for. We know she continues her magic there, just as she did here.

It is never easy to lose those we love, but we choose not to mourn them. Each had known suffering before finding peace and happiness with us. They would want us to keep doing what we do best - giving love, always. As we begin another year of service, we carry their memories forward. Until we meet again next year, we wish all our benefactors a healthy, peaceful year ahead.

With your support, we can give them dignity to life

Let's keep our paws together, working hand in hand, to ensure a brighter future for all our animal friends and the heroes who dedicate their lives to saving them.
